Identified at Last.

Glen Miller, a United States marshal at Utah, was staying in his office at Salt Lake City one day when a well dressed and intelligent looking man entered and addressed him. "I was confident that I knew the man," said Glen in responding to the man's address. "but I was not able to place him. As we conversed pleasantly it gradually became impressed upon me that he was an old Kansas acquaintance, perhaps some one I had known at the university, but he spoke so cordially and with such an assumption of his knowing me and my knowing him that I did not have the nerve to ask him who he was.

"In Salt Lake," continued the smiling marshal, "we have the same fashion of doing the square thing by a friend that used to prevail in Kansas.
There is no prohibition law in Utah, and we found a place near by that was sufficient unto our purposes. After I had said something, and he something, we quickly got along to the stage where I invited him to my house for dinner, but all the time I was taking my mind to learn his identity and watching for a chance word that would give me a clue.

"By the way," I said at last, "when did you come out?" meaning from the States, of course. "Oh, I got out last night. You see, they cut off nine months for good behavior."

"That it broke over me, my guest was Pete Curry, a celebrated mail rober, whom I had taken to the penitentiary just three years before."—Kansas City Journal.

Her Last Drink.

In Hyde Park lives a young matron who is of such a high nervous temperament that if she drinks the very smallest amount of alcoholic stimulant before going to bed the result is sleeplessness for the remainder of the night.
Some nights ago a number of friends dropped in for the evening, and the husband, who, by the way, is a south-erner, suggested that he make a mint julep for each of the company. The suggestion was received with delight, and the juleps were promptly mixed.

In his wife's glass, however, he put only enough whisky to flavor the water, probably not more than a teaspoonful. Of this she sipped about half. The result, however, was the same. She was troubled with insomnia all night long, and it was not until 5 o'clock in the morning that she dropped off to sleep and, as a consequence, was not called for breakfast.

At 10 o'clock she came down stairs and hearing the voices of children on the front porch stopped to listen. Her heart filled with motherly pride as she heard her elder son, a boy of 6, telling seven or eight children from the neighborhood that they must not make too much noise as his mamma was asleep.
Imagine her horror, too, as the young husband added:

"She drank so much whisky last night that she couldn't come down to breakfast this morning."—Kansas City Star.

Something He Couldn't Wear.

A wealthy American who became a convert to Rome was very generous to Pope Leo XIII in money matters. He had done many generous things, and the pope had rewarded him with orders and medals galore. For once a year this convert made a pilgrimage to Rome, where he was kindly received by the holy father as a son and generally, until the orders were exhausted, each time was bestowed with some fresh honor. On such occasions all these brave metal pieces were attached to the rich American's breast.

"I'll soon end that," the pope remarked to a candidate who was at his side during the levee. "Next time I shall give him a snuffbox," which he did, and a beautiful jeweled box it was.

The following year the American turned up again and was granted an audience, when to the holy father's consternation the faithful son of the church appeared not only with all his medals, but with the snuffbox attached to his waistcoat.

"The next time," the pope said, with a conical sigh, "I shall present him with a marble topped table. It is the only thing I can think of that he can't tie to his waistcoat."—Chicago Times-Herald.

65,536 Versions of Jack and Jill.

An English clergyman has written the history of Jack and Jill on a new and original plan. The first four pages of the book are numbered 1, the next four 2, and so on up to page 8. The story is so arranged that any page marked 2 can be read after any numbered 1, making good sense. In the same way page 3 can be read after page 1 or page 2; page 4 will follow page 1, 2 or 3, and so on through the eight. Application of the laws of permutation shows that the book thus contains 65,536 stories of Jack and Jill.

Not an Old Acquaintance.

"Do you mean to say that the horse ran away with you?" said Mr. Meek-ton, agast.

"Yes," answered his wife.

"And wouldn't stop when you told him to?"

"Of course he wouldn't."

"Well, Henriette, I don't know what to say except that the horse wasn't acquainted with you or else he wouldn't have dared to act in that manner."— Washington Star.

A Sermon in Brief.

A man met a bull in a field. "I'll toss you to see who stays," said the bull.
He tossed, and the man lost. The moral is that it is never safe to indulge in games of chance, especially when all the odds are against you.—Philadelphia North American.

A conscientious person should beware of getting into a passion, for every sharp word one speaks lodges in one's own heart, and such slivers hurt us worse than any one else.

BUSY DAY AT POLICE COURT.

Jaeger Wilcox Disposes of a Large Calendar of Drunks.

There was a large calendar in the police court yesterday which took all the court's time until lunch time and the better part of the afternoon to get rid of.
There were many cases of drunkenness and several assault and battery cases to be disposed of, besides some cases for the violation of board of health regulations, and a larceny case.

William Crews, one of the drunks, was congratulated by Judge Wilcox on the length of time he had kept out of the clutches of the police, and he was fined the usual two dollars and costs on pleading guilty.

Several women who were arrested for drunkenness, all Kakaako belles, were given a crowling by the court, who said that as drunkenness was increasing so much among the women he would have to raise the fine in the future if they kept coming before him in such numbers.

The men who were arrested for assaulting officers Attatani and Palanaga appeared in court to be charged. They are charged with assault, but all of them look as though they had been through a hard campaign. Two of them could hardly see. The officers were also in evidence and did not show any marks of hard treatment. It is probable that their feelings were hurt more than their bodies.
Schmidt, one of the soldiers accused of assaulting Attatani, was held to answer before the circuit court at the next term.
For was fined $5 and costs and the case against Printz was nolle prossed.

Haskell, the man arrested for stealing twenty-five cents' worth of cigars from a Chinese storekeeper, preferred to have his trial in the police court to pleading guilty and being bound over to the next term of the circuit court, and his case will be tried today. He is the man who first distinguished himself by being mixed up with Dunning in the murder of a native, early this year, and since he got out of that scrape his acquaintance with the police has been very intimate. He has been arrested several times and was sentenced for gambling the first part of this week.

best number ever issued. Don't fail to read it.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

The juniors of the Y. M. C. A. will spend today at Mauna Loa.

Oahu lodge No. 1, K. of P., worked on the third degree last evening.

Capt. Spencer is back from Kauai.

W. J. Nabala and bride left for Kona in the Mauna Loa yesterday.

The Sunday Republican will contain a number of features that will be especially interesting to every reader of a newspaper.

Mrs. St. D. G. Walters gave a chowder party at Mr. and Mrs. A. Herbert's Waikiki residence on Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Fowler, nee Neumann.

One, Kane, was discharged with a scolding by Judge Wilcox yesterday. He was accused of indecent exposure. The offense was not of a grave nature.

R. W. Anderson, one of the young men of Bishop & Co's bank, was a passenger in the Mauna Loa yesterday. He is off on a well deserved vacation trip.

Owing to the continued illness of Maria Waimers, charged with selling liquor without a license, the case against her in police court was continued until next week.

A meeting of the Camera club will be held tonight to perfect the organization.
New officers will be elected. The work of the coming year will be talked over and trips and snap shot excursions planned.

At the Christian church, on Alakea street, near King, the pastor, John C.
Hay, will preach. Subject both morning and evening, "The Perfection of the Character of Jesus, the Christ, in Relation His Deity." Bible school at 9:45 a. m.; Young People's meeting at 6:30 p. m. A cordial welcome for all.
